

WEEKLY CRIME REPORT

16th July - 22nd July

INTRODUCTION

The Kenyan Government through the National Police Service has rolled out a plan to build at least one police station in every ward in the country, a move aimed at ensuring the security and safety of her citizens.

Whereas there was a notable reduction in the number of crime-related incidents reported across the country, cases of school unrest was of concern for school heads and police.

A recently released national report by the police indicated that at least three schools are hit by cases of student unrest every day. A worrying trend that prompted police to launch investigations behind the causes of school fires as a majority of school administrators suspected foul play.
