

WEEKLY CRIME REPORT

3rd December - 9th December '19

OVERVIEW

The first week of December 2019 noted a decrease in the number of criminal activities based on our security sources. Of particular interest in the week under reference were the intensified police patrols and increased public co-operation that saw several incidents averted.

Other than the above, the continuous heavy rains experienced in the country have led to the increased number of casualties ranging from landslides to extreme cases of displacement of persons and deaths. The public is advised to be on the lookout and move to safer grounds as the heavy downpours are expected to continue throughout December. Motorists are also cautioned to take extreme caution before attempting to cross streams or rivers which have burst their banks for their own security. We have already lost many innocent lives through such wrong misjudgements in the recent past.
