SECURITY THREATS

CYBER CRIME

The stay at home directive by the Government has seen people confined in their homes with a majority having to rely on the internet to work or access different services online like learning. Given this current situation, there has been a looming threat to increased fraudulent activities as cybercriminals take advantage to defraud unsuspecting victims through COVID-19 scam calls and phishing.

TERRORISM

There have been at least three cases of foiled attacks by suspected Al-Shabaab militants reported along the Kenya-Somalia border with the Counties of Marsabit, Wajir, and Garissa been the most affected. In this regard, the Kenyan Security Agencies have increased border patrols and are on high alert for suspicious individuals.

CRIME

Murder, robbery-related, and gender-based violence cases have been on a rise as compared to a similar period last year. In most instances, the perpetrators of these heinous acts have taken advantage of the current situation in the Country to carry out their deeds. However, the police continue to reassure the public of their safety despite this notable rise.
