WEEKLY SECURITY & SAFETY REPORT
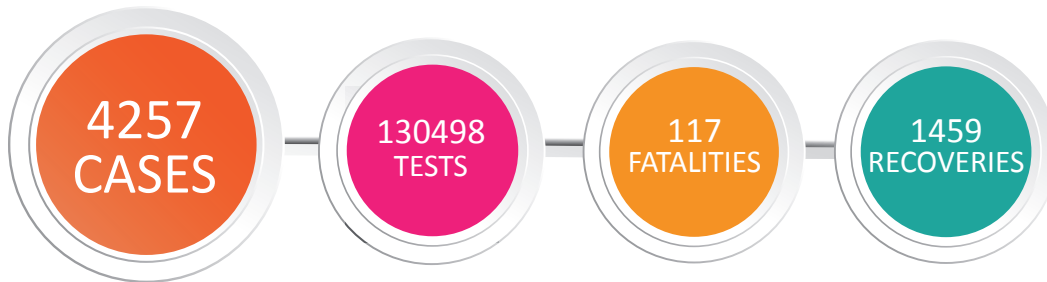

BM SECURITY est.1984

12th June - 18th June 2020

OVERVIEW

The Ministry of Health on Thursday announced the highest COVID-19 infection numbers, as 213 individuals tested positive for the disease. However, it is crucial to mention that this spike results from increased testing, and the numbers may continue to rise. In addition to the infection numbers, the number of fatalities was also high as 10 patients succumbed to coronavirus.

The above trends have had Kenyans worried not only on the spread of coronavirus but also crime trends amid COVID-19 restrictions. A majority do believe that crime would intensify if the Government further extended the cessation of movement and dusk-to-dawn curfew orders.

SECURITY THREATS

CRIME

Our security sources show that there has been a rise of criminals disguising themselves in fake security uniforms to get access to residential and commercial premises. We advise the public to be on the lookout of such individuals and always ask for identification proof. Feel free to contact your private security provider or the police should you notice something suspicious.

Over the past two weeks, police have noted a rise in crimes targeting joggers in various parts of the Nairobi City. In this regard, they have advised Kenyans who prefer to exercise outdoors to be on the lookout of suspicious routes lest they fall victim to pickpockets and armed robbers.
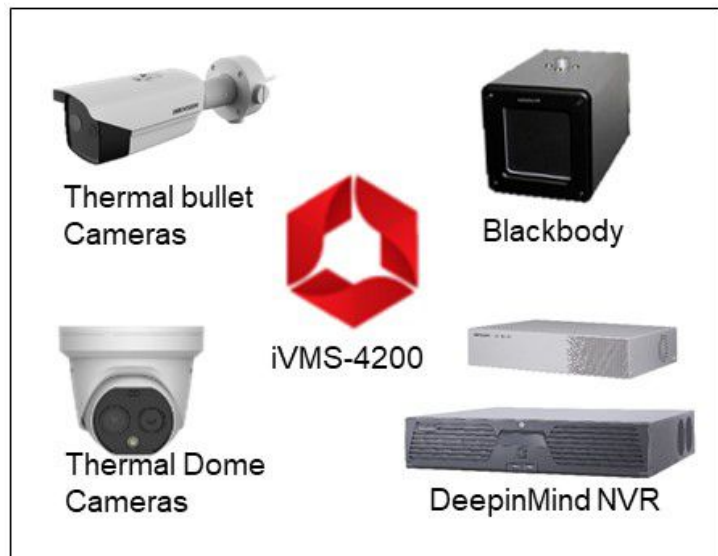

CIVIL UNREST

The Country continues to remain calm with no major report of riots or any other form of civil unrest given the COVID-19 situation. However, there exists uncertainty on how people may react should the Government further extend the COVID-19 restrictions.
